

HOLY INNOCENTS FALLOWFIELD

March/April 2018: Passiontide, Holy Week and Easter

The second Sunday of March, Lent 4, is Refreshment Sunday when we 'relax' the Lenten austerity a bit. A few flowers may make an appearance... We also welcome our former rector, Bill Raines, to preach and preside. Fr Bill and Gisela will be heading to their new home in Preston when Gisela retires from St Paul's on April 15th. So this is a chance to wish them well as they stop being our near neighbours.

At some point in the next couple of weeks the organ will come back into church to be reconstructed. This could be going on into Holy Week and beyond. So on the Monday, all who would normally attend the evening Eucharist are invited - with anyone else who would like to attend - to come along to the school Eucharist for Holy Week at St James' School at 9am. On the Tuesday and Wednesday mornings - before the banging and building starts - there is a chance to fill the church with quiet prayer which can be joined in with both by being present in church or at a distance for those who cannot travel. On the Tuesday, we pray with Mary, Mother of Jesus, using her prayers and reflecting on what are known as the sorrowful mysteries of our Lord's passion. On Wednesday morning, we walk the Stations of the Cross. The Revd. Nigel Hawley joins us on Thursday to lead our services for the Triduum, ending with baptisms on Easter Eve, at the Great Vigil of Easter. On Easter Day, Nila Shanivar will be welcomed into the church by baptism.

Noticeboard space will be available for those who would like to share their thoughts about the reading they have done during Lent.

Our APCM will be on Sunday April 15th, after the service, and Richard Young's induction as Rector has been arranged for Tuesday April 24th at 7.30pm.

The Revd Nigel Hawley, who is going to lead us through the Triduum (Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Easter Eve) has sent us his thoughts and an invitation.

Holy Week should be a metropolitan experience: on Palm Sunday, the church building becomes for us Jerusalem, the City of the Living - and dying - God. On that day, with the crowds we walk to Jerusalem to welcome Jesus as Messiah and king.

Then, on Holy Thursday the Lord gives us his New Commandment to love another: as a token of this, we let him wash our feet. So he gives us himself in bread and wine. The service that night is the last rehearsal for a new way of worship, a way of sacrifice, a way of feasting and celebration which on Good Friday becomes real. On that solemn day, a pilgrimage is made to a hill outside the city. And there we watch him die. His mother kneels at his feet and the sword of sorrow, foretold by Simeon, pierces her heart. The sacrifice is completed. And with the disciples, dejected, let-down, we return to Jerusalem, for us now a city of desolation.

But for him, the work is not yet completed.

Hell must be harrowed and its powers shaken. So on Saturday we wait with the disciples. As darkness falls, we stay in the city. Its memories distress us. Back in the day, when he was with us we had hope. Back in the day.

But then lights are lit, bells sounded and tombs are emptied. Haec dies quam fecit Dominus et laetemur in ea. Not “back in the day”, but rather,

“This is the day”, the day that sees Christ rising and the city reborn. We rejoice and are glad in it.

Holy Week is not about drama or re-enactment. It is a celebration of a new kind of reality which is now forever focused for us in the Eucharist where bread and wine become what bread and wine seem not to be. It is not like anything else. In its celebration we become a new people, a Eucharistic community which both receives life from the city it is called to serve and gives life by acts of loving service to all around. This Eucharistic community, like the Mass which is its heart, is not like anything else.

In an age of conformity, Christians are called to be transgressive - to cross boundaries.

In a city of wealth we are called to preach the good news to the poor, liberty to those held captive by the culture of materialism and the recovery of vision to all who have lost it.

We are called, in fact, to build a new kingdom of love and justice.

So Holy Week can never be an optional extra. In its celebration we become what we are called to be: people of new life. Please be there!
